No more shall the war cry sever, Or the winding rivers be red; They banish our anger forever, When they laurel the graves of our dead;- Under the sod and the dew, Waiting the judgment day; Love and tears, for the Blue; Tears and love, for the Gray. -F. M. Finch. NOTE. -The above touching little poem first appeared in the Atlantic Monthly in September, 1867. It commemorates the noble action on the part of the women at Columbus, Miss. , who in decorating the graves strewn flowers impartially on those of the Confederate and of the Federal soldiers. LIX. THE MACHINISTS RETURN. Adapted from a letter written by a correspondent of the Washington Capital. 1. On our way from Springfield to Boston, a stout, black-whiskered man sat immediately in front of me, in the drawing-room car, whose maneuvers were a source of constant..

This book will never be straightforward to start on looking at but extremely exciting to read. I actually have read through and that i am sure that i am going to gonna go through once more again in the future. I am happy to explain how this is the very best book i have read through in my individual lifestyle and may be he best publication for at any time.
